

Students Available For Jobs

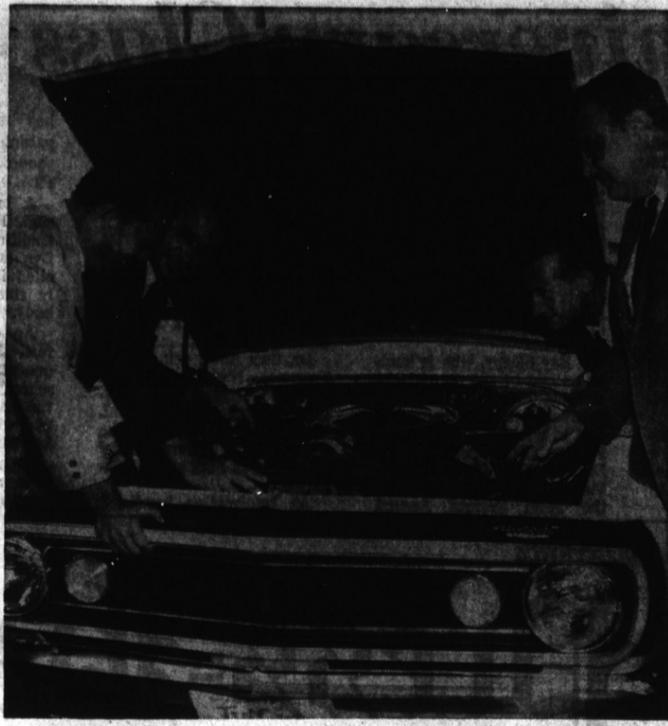

Torrance students will be available for summer jobs in homes and businesses beginning June 17, according to Delmar Smith, district work experience coordinator for the Torrance Unified School District.

More than 20,000 flyers were mailed to registered voters this week inviting them to hire high school students, Smith said.

Jobs in the home for which students are available include: yard work, dinner preparation, party preparation and cleanup, children's entertainment, running errands, window washing, writing invitations, mothers' helpers, baby sitters, tutoring, pool cleaners, vacation pet sitting, vacation pool sitting, painting, and car washing.

Other jobs for which they are qualified include: bus boys, stock boys, delivery boys, typists, gas station attendants, waitresses, order takers, receptionists, sales clerks, special mailings, and secretaries.

Persons interested in hiring youths are asked to call the Torrance Youth Employment service, California Department of Employment, at FA 0-1361, between 1 and 5 p.m.

WALLED CITY... This painting by Larry Macaray, Press-Herald art and travel columnist, depicts the old walled city of Jerusalem, Macaray discusses some of the history of the divided city which has figured in events in the Middle East during the past few days.

...Let's Go

By LARRY MACARY

The holiest of all cities in the world, Jerusalem, is again in the news. A divided city for so many years—half in Israel and half in Jordan, Jerusalem seems now to be completely in the hands of Israel. Surely, this city has been a thorn in the side of the young Jewish nation. Moslems have the Dome of the Rock to worship in, Christians have the church of the Holy Sepulchre, but the Jews have been denied the right to lament and pray at the Wailing Wall in the old part of the city.

According to tradition, Jerusalem was the center of the earth and the place where God created Adam. Beneath it is the source of all sweet waters, and above it stands the throne of God and the celestial Temple. It was from Jerusalem that Mohammed ascended to heaven to converse with God and it is to Jerusalem, on the Day of Judgment, that the Garden of Eden will be transferred to the delight of the selected ones.

On that day, all mankind would have assembled on the Mount of Olives at the one place on the hill where no blood has ever been spilled. It is probably the only place in Jerusalem that has been spared bloodshed, for the history of the city is as dreadful as it is holy. The city's religion has changed many times, but its fanaticism has remained constant, and the price which that fanaticism exacts has remained large.

THE CHURCH of the Holy Sepulchre should have impressed me when I was there in the summer of 1965, but I just couldn't believe the confusion. Christendom's holiest shrine, which shelters Christ's tomb and the rock on which the Cross stood, is an unbelievable array of cut-up sections. The Greek Orthodox controls about three-fourths of the structure, shoddy though it is. Their rivals, the Roman Catholics and the Armenians, can claim small sections, while the Copts are forced to be content with a tiny chapel on the roof.

If I were extremely religious, the shock of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre would have been almost traumatic. Although pilgrims and tourists no longer have to pay to enter the church, the commercialism is everywhere. Tourists are plagued by nagging and greedy guides mine was an obnoxious boor), touts from the Queen of Sheba Souvenir Shop, and monks walk around eagerly trying to trade watches.

A very colorful part of the old walled city is the Via Dolorosa which follows the route of Jesus from his trial to his crucifixion. Although the identification of many of its sites is very ancient, the route as a whole was not finally set until the fourteenth century. Then, it was so ingeniously fixed that Christians and Moslem pilgrims could tour their respective holy places without once crossing each other's paths.

THE MOST beautiful building in Jerusalem today is the Golden Dome of the Rock, designed by Greek architects in the Seventh Century. It is the third holiest shrine of Islam according to Moslem tradition, one pilgrimage there was equal to participation in 10 campaigns of a holy war, and to die there ensured entering paradise. I was quite impressed by the beauty and size of this shrine. Although I had to side-step people on prayer rugs, I did see all of the famous rock inside of the building.

If Israel gets to keep this old walled portion of the city it will become one of the busiest spots on earth. History is so deep here that one with a religious, historical, or even curious bent will not be able to stay away. The Wailing Wall will float on a flood of tears and the old Damascus Gate (main entrance to the walled city) will suddenly become a toll gate.

My Hilton Around-The-World tour leaves Los Angeles on Monday, June 26 and I just happen to have space for two more people. It is a 32-day tour that costs $2,010 for everything—best tour by far on the market. Of course we have to skirt the Arab countries but that's no problem. Call me at KEystone 5-5595 and start packing—there's just enough time.

Zeigler then ran after the suspect on foot and captured him after a two-block chase.

A stereo set was in the suspect's car which was later identified as the property of the Zeiglers. The suspect pleaded guilty to two counts of burglary. He was under the influence of narcotics at the time of his arrest, the district attorney reported.

OTHER PERSONS cited this week included three who helped capture a child molester, one who helped trap a confidence man, one who came to the aid of a policeman who had been subdued by an unruly crowd, and for similar actions.

Herbert Frieda of Signal Hill was cited for his actions after he reported to work at a Redondo Beach grocery store just as three robbers were leaving. He pursued the bandits until their car struck a power pole in Torrance. Frieda grabbed the driver and was able to hold him until Torrance police arrived.
